Let's Start!

It's all a question of balance.

Learning Outcome

Describe routines and regular activities in a wider range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Is it hard to maintain a balance between work and family life? Why or why not?
- What can we do to help employed people spend more time with their family?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about family life.
- I can talk about how something happens or how someone behaves.
- I can talk about what is necessary.

Let's Explore!

In this article, Sally talks about the changing family structure

* The "family structure" is the way things are set up or organized in a family by tradition.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

In the past decade, families in many countries have changed profoundly. People have got to struggle endlessly in order to balance their work and family lives.

"American families today are living under circumstances much different than even a few years ago. Every income group and geographic region is affected," recently argued Representative George Miller, former chairman of the House Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families. More than half of the US children under 13 live in a household where both parents work, or where the only parent works.

Parents choose to work for different reasons. Challenging career opportunities have emerged. But, more importantly, in many families, both parents have to be gainfully employed in order to make a living. Mothers of infants and toddlers are more likely to return to work after a leave of absence than before. It is also more common to see grandparents raising their grandchildren. Personally, I think all family members are going to have to be flexible to adapt to change.

Let's Practice!

In her article, Sally uses many adverbs of manner. Can you identify them? Let's practice speaking!

Instructions: Identify and circle the adverbs of manner.

1. Families in many countries have changed profoundly.
2. More and more people have to struggle endlessly in order to balance their work and family lives.
3. Both parents have to be gainfully employed in order to make a living.

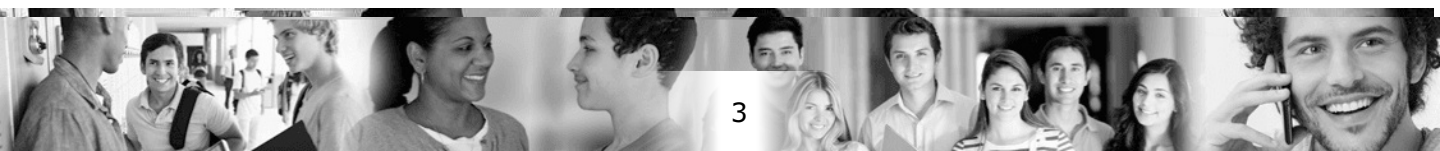

Let's Practice!

Sally talks about the future.

Instructions: Proofread the sentence. Choose the incorrect word. Write the correct words to complete the sentence.

1. People need struggle in order to balance their work and family lives.
2. Both parents must employed in order to make a living.
3. All of these members of the family are go to have to be flexible to adapt to change.

Extension Activity

You are the boss at work. With a partner, try to find solutions to some common problems employees have related to work and family life.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Read the situations below.
- With a partner, discuss each situation.
Try to find a solution for each situation.
- Write down each solution.
- Role-play a meeting. You inform the employee about what solutions are possible.

Situations:

- A mother has a toddler at home. The grandmother can stay with the child, but only in the afternoon.
- A father has an infant daughter. He is a single parent (there is only one parent).
- It is the first day of school for a young child. Both parents want to be there. Both parents work at your company.

Learning Points

Adverbs of Manner

You use adverbs of manner to describe how something is done.

Example: She walked slowly.

How did she walk? Slowly.

Many adverbs are formed by adding -ly to an adjective: >

Examples: sad--->sadly, curious--->curiously

You take out the letter -y and add -ily to adjectives ending in -y.

Example: angry--->angrily

The adjectives fast, hard, well and straight are exceptions. They do not change when they become adverbs.

Adjective	Adverb
gainful	gainfully
profound	profoundly
endless	endlessly
careful	carefully
regular	regularly

Examples:

- In the past decade, family structures in many countries have changed profoundly.
- Most adults have to be gainfully employed in order to make a living.
